A maker of women's exclusive model Shirt Waists, in Philadelphia (one of the largest makers in the country, by the way), came to us with this proposition: He had left over in stock about 5,000 yards of very fine sheer lawn together with a quantity of embroidery, &c. His most clever designer prepared what we deem one of the prettiest designs of the season. He offered to make up for us the entire quantity of material, in this pattern, at a price which barely covers the actual cost of the lawn. So to-morrow

2,500 Exclusive Model Waists at just about what you would pay for two and a half yards of fine lawn

The illustration shows the style, and the details follow: Material is very sheer; waist buttons in back; has round yoke, with double rows of Val. lace inserting; blouse is pleated back and front, set off with panels of openwork embroidery; very newest leg-o'-mutton sleeves, finished with deep cuff, trim-

NINE-YEAR-OLD GIRL TOLD A WHOLE LOT OF FIBS.

Nine-year-old Mary O'Keefe, of No. to the Hudson Street Hospital, where she told a pitiful tale of neglect, proved to-day to be a highly imaginative little libber. She told Dr. Vance, the surgeon who took her to the hospital, that her mother and father were dead and the standard, they will stand to their best advantage. Two pounds avoirduples per quarter-inch is the regular allowance in the "scale for age, class, and inches." mother and father were dead, and that she lived wit han aunt who wasn't good o her, and that she hadn't had any thing to eat for two days. She called herself Mary Reardon, of No. 95 Washingtop waret, which was also proved to be imaginative to-day.

Mary's mother, who had traced her to the hospitul, appeared 10-day and claimed the "orphan." She said that Mary was a little fibber, that her father and mother were both alive, and that she had a good home, but that she was wid and incorrigible, and always rurning away from home. She ran away monday, her mother said, and thus fel under the care of the hospital authorities. Though she didn't want to go, as she was quite confortable in the hospital, Mary was taken home by her mother. Mrs. Reardon says she will turn the gril over to the children's Society, for she can do nothing with her.

You Could Go to Europe and Back in the Time It Would Take One Man to Open, Read and File the Answers to Sunday World Want Ads. Received at The World's Main Office During Monday.

This seems incredible, yet there never was a thing truer. Figure it yourself: 8,525 sealed envelopes to be slit, opened, the contents extract-ed, read and then filed in alphabetical order would require the services of one man 18 days at 8 hours a day, averaging 60 answers an hour, or 1 a minute; 8,525 answers equal 8,525 minutes, or 142 hours at 8 hours a day 18 days. And the rec-ord to Europe is a few hours over 5 days. Some of the answers are to the point, others are long.

But they all are eagerly sought by the advertisers' who have paid The World for them-for, after ail, that is precisely what The World is precisely what The World
